VERNATOUN

Tumanyan's Vernatun

Vernatun originally was a literary club founded in 1899 by Hovhannes Tumanyan on the last floor of his Tbilisi house.

It was a symbol of Armenian intellectual life - a place where the great minds of the time gathered to share ideas, read, and converse about the homeland, art, and literature.

The founding members of Vernatun were Hovhannes Tumanyan, Avetik Isahakyan, Levon Shant, Derenik Demirchyan, and Ghazaros Aghayan. They met regularly to exchange thoughts, create, and shape an entire cultural era.

- ✎ Tumanyan's Vernatun became a symbol of Armenian intellectual life, a place where the great minds of the time gathered to exchange ideas, read, debate, and speak about the homeland, art, and literature.
- ✎ The Afrikyans Club at 11 Teryan Street was built in the late 19th century by the renowned Afrikyan brothers. Artists, public figures, and prominent Yerevan residents gathered here. They would gather at the club and, over a cup of coffee, discuss the pressing issues of their time.
- ✎ During the Soviet years, under conditions of restricted public and political activity, a group of young mathematicians were searching for ways of national consolidation. One of the most notable expressions of this was the annual gatherings of intellectuals held in Tsaghkadzor from 1979 to 1981, bringing together leading cultural, scientific, and spiritual figures of the time. Among them were the poet Silva Kaputikyan, sculptors Ara Shiraz and Ervand Kochar, mathematician Sergey Mergelyan, architect Armen Zaryan, writer Sero Khazdadyan, ethnographer Hayrik Muradyan, founder-director of the Children's Art Museum Henrik Igityan, the great Armenian singer Lusine Zakaryan, and others.
- ✎ European salon culture likewise presupposed closed gatherings and meetings where the representatives of different circles and social strata openly and freely discussed art, literature, philosophy, music, and politics.

VERNATOUN

The historical club spirit is now being revived in the new VERNATOUN by Keron.

VERNATOUN is a community space located in one of Yerevan's unique historical buildings.

It brings together proactive, like-minded and engaged individuals around distinctive experiences, conversations, and ideas — people who share common values and believe in the power of dialogue.

Location: Pushkin 38

VERNATOUN is located at 38 Pushkin Street, which is also known as Arakel Afrikyan's house.

The building was built in 1902 by Vasiliy Mirzoyan.

Today, it is included in the list of Yerevan's historical and cultural monuments. The building is unique for its preserved ceiling murals and tiled fireplaces.

VERNATOUN powered by Keron is a contemporary interpretation of Armenia's great intellectual and cultural gatherings.

VERNATOUN is an environment whose members are united not by titles, but by the values, vision, and contribution.

Full access to the space, events, network, and community tools will be available through annual membership.

The agenda of VERNATOUN powered by Keron is shaped around signature events, intimate gatherings, and partner-initiated ideas.

There will be a diverse range of content-driven gatherings, with priority given to meaningful and high-quality participation rather than scale. From time to time, in addition to in-person meetings, hybrid and online formats will connect VERNATOUN's members across the globe.

EVENTS

CONVERSATIONS & DISCUSSIONS

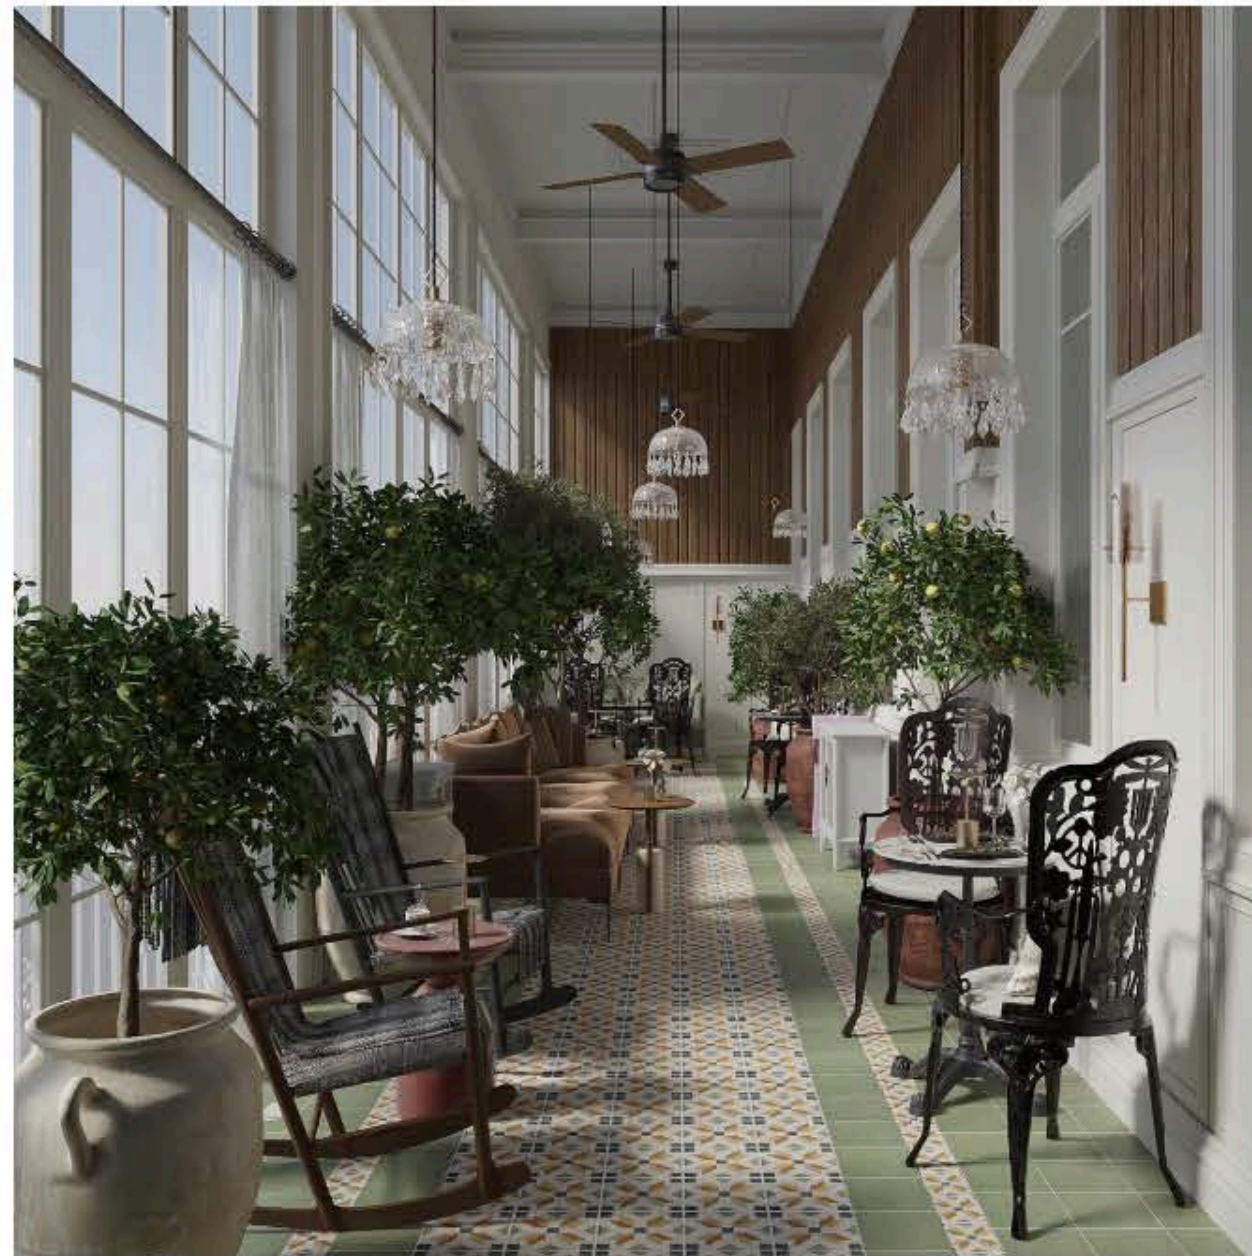

Events, discussions, conversations, and dinners that bring together thoughtful, progressive, creative people to exchange ideas. From intimate salon gatherings and debates to large events and receptions.
